Administrative history / Biographical sketch

Note

Canada's United Nations Association was established in 1946, they describe themselves as a national charitable organization which aims to educate and engage Canadians on global issues and the work of the United Nations. This organization was one of the founding members of the World Federation of United Nations Associations, a global non-profit organization which represents and coordinates the efforts of all the United Nations Associations around the world. The United Nations Association in Canada aims to bring educational resources on current issues to citizens and especially youth across Canada and other poorer countries, with the aim of growing global citizens who embrace the principles of the U.N. Charter.

Scope and content

This collection contains old school handouts which can either be archival in nature or provide interesting information. It includes a handout published by the United Nations Association in Canada which was meant to inform students and get them talking about the political situation in middle eastern countries during 1956.

Series: MC 889-MS1 - “World Review for Canadian Schools” Vol. VI, No. 10

Title: “World Review for Canadian Schools” Vol. VI, No. 10

Reference code: MC 889-MS1

Date: 1956 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

A pamphlet for Canadian schools published monthly during the school year by the United Nations Association in Canada. These pamphlets are meant to inform students of what was happening in other parts of the world at the time and to provide some historical context for the events in question. This issue focusses on the history of Saudi Arabia’s contacts and relations with foreign powers such as the United States and Britain and how that has influenced recent events in 1956. The last segment in this pamphlet has questions meant to spark a discussion and debate about these events among students who have read the pamphlet.
